What if I have studied similar courses before?

What is an exemption?

- If you have completed a course/s in your Undergraduate studies that you think is the same as a course in your postgraduate program you may be eligible for an exemption from compulsory course/s.
- Receiving an exemption does not reduce the number of courses that you need to complete to graduate. You need to replace any exempted compulsory courses with an elective from your program's course list.

What is credit?

- If you have completed equivalent courses at a Postgraduate Level, you may be entitled to credit.
- Receiving credit reduces the number of courses you need to complete to graduate. You don't need to replace courses for which you are awarded credit.

Dung's Top Tips

PG Student and Tutor

Come to Class!!

Really try to come into campus and get to know your peers and lecturers/tutors, it makes the experience much more enjoyable!

Access the Library

The UQ libraries are an amazing resource for assignments and general academic problems. From numerous study spaces to library services, which include, but are not limited to, referencing guides, software practice workshops and huge data bases for research, UQ libraries are definitely a great help during the semesters.

Plan your time out

Roster in time to study, work on assessment, attend classes, and have some breaks. Also make sure to leave yourself time to relax and enjoy the campus.

Interact and Engage

Try and interact with other students. As weird as it may seem initially, making friends is one of the best experiences of being a UQ student.

Plan Things Out

Having assignments and exams for four subjects can be overwhelming. Thus, planning and following guidelines has helped me get through the semesters smoothly, and not get burdened by the assignments.
